DRAFT POLICY ON TIMELY DISCLOSURE

The attached draft policy on timely disclosure is intended to form the basis of a revised section in the Exchange's Company Manual on timely disclosure of material information concerning the business and affairs of listed companies. The new policy is intended to pull together various sections of the Manual that deal with timely disclosure, and to clarify the obligations of listed companies in this important area. Material information is defined and explained, the role of the Exchange's Market Surveillance Division is set out, the guidelines on making announcements of material information have been revised, and when matters may be kept confidential by companies.

The Exchange welcomes comments from members on the draft.

Please address your comments to Donald Simmons, Director of the Market Policy Division of the Exchange. The Exchange would appreciate receiving your comments by July 16, 1984.

TIMELY DISCLOSURE

DRAFT POLICY

A. Introduction

It is a cornerstone policy of The Toronto Stock Exchange that all persons investing in securities listed on the Exchange have equal access to information that may affect their investment decisions. Public confidence in the integrity of the Exchange as a securities market requires timely disclosure of material information concerning the business and affairs of companies listed on the Exchange, thereby placing all participants in the market on an equal footing.

The requirements of the Exchange are in addition to any applicable statutory requirements. The Exchange enforces its own requirements. All companies whose securities are listed on the Exchange are legally obligated to comply with the provisions on timely disclosure set out in section 74 of the Securities Act of Ontario, the Regulations under the Act and the Policies of the Ontario Securities Commission set out in Appendix E of this Manual.

B. Material Information

Definition

Material information is any information relating to the business and affairs of the company that would reasonably be expected to result in a change in the market price of any of the company's listed securities or that would reasonably be expected to influence a reasonable investor's investment decisions.

Material information consists of both material facts and material changes relating to the business and affairs of a listed company. In addition to material information, trading on the Exchange is sometimes affected by the existence of rumours and speculation. Where this is the case, the Exchange may require that an announcement be made by the company whether such rumours and speculation are factual or not. The policy of the Exchange with regard to rumours is set out more fully below.

The timely disclosure policy of the Exchange is designed to supplement the provisions of the Ontario Securities Act, which requires disclosure of any "material change" as defined therein. A report must be filed with the Ontario Securities Commission concerning any "material change" as soon as practicable and in any event within ten days of the date on which the change occurs. Companies subject to securities legislation outside of Ontario should be aware of their disclosure obligations in other jurisdictions.

Rule: Immediate Disclosure

A listed company is required to disclose material information concerning its business and affairs forthwith upon the information becoming known to management, or in the case of information previously known, forthwith upon it becoming apparent that the information is material. Immediate release of information is necessary to ensure that it is promptly available to all investors and to reduce the risk of persons with access to the information from acting upon undisclosed information. Unusual trading marked by significant changes in the price or trading volumes of any of a company's securities prior to the announcement of material information is embarrassing to company management and damaging to the reputation of the securities market since the investing public may assume that certain persons benefitted from access to material information which was not generally disclosed.

Developments to be Disclosed

Companies are not required to interpret the impact of external political, economic and social developments on their affairs, but if the external development will have or has had a direct effect on their business and affairs that is both material in the sense outlined above and uncharacteristic of the effect generally experienced as a result of such development by other companies engaged in the same business or industry, companies are urged to explain the particular impact on them. For example, a change in government policy that affects most companies in a particular industry does not require an announcement, but if it affects only one or a few companies in a material way, an announcement should be made.

The market price of a company's securities may be affected by factors directly relating to the securities themselves as well as by information concerning the company's business and affairs. For example, changes in a company's issued capital, stock splits, redemptions and dividend decisions may all impact upon the market price of a security.

Other developments which are likely to require prompt disclosure include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Actual or proposed changes in share ownership that may materially affect control of the company.

2. Proposed corporate reorganizations, amalgamations etc.

3. Proposed take-over bids or issuer bids.

4. Major corporate acquisitions or dispositions.

5. Proposed changes in capital structure.

6. Borrowing of a significant amount of funds.

7. Public or private sale of additional securities.

8. Development of significant new products and any developments affecting the company's resources, technology, products or market.

9. Entering into or loss of significant contracts.

10. Indicated significant changes in earnings prospects, upward or downward.

11. Material change in capital investment plans or corporate objectives.

12. Significant changes in management.

13. Significant litigation.

14. Major labour disputes or disputes with major subcontractors or suppliers.

15. Events of technical default or actual default under financing or other agreements.

16. Any other developments relating to the business and affairs of the company that would reasonably be expected to affect the market price of any of the company's securities.

Forecasts of earnings and other financial forecasts need not be disclosed, but where a significant increase or decrease in earnings is expected in the near future this fact must be disclosed. Forecasts should not be provided on a selective basis to certain investors. If disclosed, they should be generally disclosed. Reference should be made to Ontario Securities Commission Policy 5.8, "Financial Forecasts".

C. Market Surveillance

Monitoring Trading

The Market Surveillance Division of the Exchange maintains a continuous stock watch program which is designed to highlight unusual market activity, such as unusual price and volume changes in a stock relative to its historical pattern of trading. Where unusual trading activity takes place in a listed security, the Market Surveillance Division attempts to determine the specific cause of such activity. If the specific cause cannot be determined immediately, company management will be contacted. Should this contact result in Market Surveillance becoming aware of a situation which requires a news release, the company will be asked to make an immediate announcement. Should the company be unaware of any undisclosed developments, Market Surveillance will continue to monitor trading and, if concerns continue, may ask the company to issue a statement that it is not aware of any undisclosed developments that would account for the unusual trading pattern.

Timing of Announcements

The Market Surveillance Division is given the responsibility of receiving all timely disclosure news releases from listed companies detailing material information concerning their affairs. The Exchange prefers that, where practicable, disclosure of material information take place after the close of trading. The practicality of delaying disclosure until the close of trading is determined by the materiality of an announcement, the time of day when an announcement is ready to be made, and the ability of the listed company to maintain total confidentiality in respect of the contents of the announcement. The overriding rule is that significant announcements are required to be released immediately. Otherwise, announcements that are ready early in the day should be released as soon as possible, while developments occurring later in the day may be released after the close of trading. If there is any reason to believe that total confidentiality may not be maintained, an immediate announcement is required.

If an announcement is to be made during trading hours, trading in the stock may be halted until the announcement is made public and disseminated. The Exchange determines the amount of time necessary for dissemination in any particular case, which determination is dependent upon the significance and complexity of the announcement. A halt in trading does not reflect upon the reputation of management of a company nor upon the quality of its securities. Indeed, trading halts for material information announcements are usually made at the request of the listed company involved.

Company officials are encouraged to seek assistance and direction from the Market Surveillance Division as to when an announcement should be released and whether trading in the company's shares should be halted for dissemination of an announcement. Enquiries should be directed to the Manager, Market Surveillance (416-947-4557).

It is neither the intention nor practice of the Market Surveillance Division to halt trading for all news releases from listed companies. A news release is discussed by Market Surveillance and the listed company prior to its release and determinations are made as to whether a trading halt is justified based upon the impact which the particular announcement is expected to have on the market for the company's securities. If a halt is deemed necessary, trading is normally interrupted for a period of less than two hours. The Exchange co-ordinates trading halts with other exchanges and markets where a company's securities are listed or traded elsewhere. A convention exists among exchanges and NASDAQ that trading in a security traded in more than one market shall be halted and resumed at the same time in each market. Failing to pre-notify the Exchange of an imminent announcement could disrupt this system.

Rumours

Unusual market activity is often caused by the presence of rumours. The Exchange recognizes that it is impractical to expect management to be aware of, and comment on, all rumours, but when market activity indicates that trading is being unduly influenced by rumour the Exchange will request that a clarifying statement be made by the company. Prompt clarification or denial of rumours through a news release is the most effective manner of rectifying such a situation. A trading halt may be instituted pending a "no corporate developments" statement from the company. If a rumour is correct in whole or in part, immediate disclosure of the relevant material information must be made by the company and a trading halt will be instituted pending release and dissemination of the information.

In certain circumstances trading in a listed security may be stopped by the Exchange as a result of a cease trading order being issued by the Ontario Securities Commission. Such an order may be issued by the Commission where it is of the opinion that a halt in trading is in the public interest. However, the Exchange generally handles halts for the dissemination of announcements of material information.

D. Announcements of Material Information

Pre-Notification to Exchange

The Exchange's policy requires immediate release of material information except in unusual circumstances. While the Exchange prefers that news releases be issued after the close of trading, the policy of immediate disclosure will frequently require that news releases be issued during trading hours when an important corporate development has occurred. If this is the case, it is absolutely essential that company officials notify the Market Surveillance Division prior to the issuance of a news release. Market Surveillance staff will then be in a position to determine whether trading in any of the company's securities should be temporarily halted. Also, if the Exchange is not advised of news releases in advance, any subsequent unusual trading activity will generate enquiries and perhaps a halt in trading.

Regardless of when an announcement involving material information is released, the Market Surveillance Division must be advised of its content and supplied with a copy forthwith upon its release. Market Surveillance must be advised by telephone in advance if an annoucement is to be made during trading hours, followed by submission of a written copy of the release. Where an announcement is to be released after the Exchange has closed, Market Surveillance should be advised before trading opens on the next trading day. Copies may be telexed or hand delivered to the Market Surveillance Division, 4th floor, The Exchange Tower, 2 First Canadian Place, 130 King Street West, Toronto; Telex 065-24038.

Dissemination

After notification to the Exchange, a news release should be transmitted to the media by the quickest possible method and in a manner which provides for wide dissemination. The Exchange recommends that a news release be made to news services that disseminate financial news nationally, to the financial press and to daily newspapers that provide regular coverage of financial news. Detailed instructions on the release of news to various media outlets and news services is set out in Part IX.

Content of Announcements

Announcements of material information should be factual and balanced, neither over-emphasizing favourable news nor under-emphasizing unfavourable news. Unfavourable news must be disclosed just as promptly and completely as favourable news. It is appreciated that news releases may not be able to contain all the details that would be included in a prospectus or similar document. However, news releases should contain sufficient detail to enable media personnel and investors to appreciate the true substance and importance of the information so that investors may make informed investment decisions. The guiding principle should be to communicate clearly and accurately the nature of the information, without including unnecessary details, exaggerated reports or editorial commentary designed to colour the investment community's perception of the announcement one way or another. The company should be prepared to supply further information when appropriate.

Misleading Announcements

While the policy of the Exchange is that all material information must be released immediately, judgment must be exercised by company officials as to the timing and propriety of any news releases concerning corporate developments since misleading disclosure activity designed to influence the price of a security is considered by the Exchange to be improper. Misleading news releases send signals to the investment community which are not justified by an objective examination of the facts, and may detract from the credibility of the company. Announcements of an intention to proceed with a transaction or activity should not be made unless the company has the ability to carry out the intent and a decision has been made to proceed with the transaction or activity by the board of directors of the company, or by senior management with the expectation of concurrence from the board of directors. Disclosure of corporate developments must be handled carefully and requires the exercise of judgment by company officials as to the timing of an announcement of material information, since either premature or late disclosure may result in damage to the reputation of the securities markets.

E. Confidentiality

When information may be kept confidential

In restricted circumstances disclosure of material information concerning the business and affairs of a listed company may be delayed and kept confidential temporarily where immediate release of the information would be unduly detrimental to the interests of the company.

Examples of instances in which disclosure might be unduly detrimental to the company's interest are as follws:

(1) Release of the information would prejudice the ability of the company to pursue specific and limited objectives or to complete a transaction or series of transactions that are underway. For example, premature disclosure of the fact that a company intends to purchase a significant asset may increase the cost of making the acquisition.

(2) Disclosure of the information would provide competitors with confidential corporate information that would be of significant benefit to them. Such information may be kept confidential if the company is of the opinion that the detriment to it resulting from disclosure would outweigh the detriment to the market in not having access to the information. A decision to release a new product, or details on the features of a new product, may be withheld for competitive reasons. Such information should not be withheld if it is available to competitors from other sources.

(3) Disclosure of information concerning the status of ongoing negotiations would prejudice the successful completion of those negotiations. It is unnecessary to make a series of announcements concerning the status of negotiations with another party concerning a particular transaction. If it seems that the situation is going to stabilize within a short period, public disclosure may be delayed until a definitive announcement can be made. Disclosure should be made once "concrete information" is available, such as a final decision to proceed with the transaction or, at a later point in time, finalization of the terms of the transaction.

It is the policy of the Exchange that the withholding of material information on the basis that disclosure would be unduly detrimental to the company's interests must be infrequent and can only be justified where the potential harm to the company or to investors caused by immediate disclosure may reasonably be considered to outweigh the undesirable consequences of delaying disclosure, keeping in mind at all times the considerations that have given rise to the Exchange's immediate disclosure policy. While recognizing that there must be a trade-off between the legitimate interest of a company in maintaining secrecy and the right of the investing public to disclosure of corporate information, the Exchange discourages delaying disclosure for a lengthy period of time since it is unlikely that confidentiality can be maintained beyond the short term.

Maintaining Confidentiality

If disclosure of material information is delayed, complete confidentiality must be maintained. In the event that such confidential information, or rumours respecting the same, is divulged in any manner (other than in the necessary course of business), the company is required to make an immediate announcement on the matter. The Exchange must be notified of the announcement in advance in the usual manner. During the period before material information is disclosed, market activity in the company's securities should be closely monitored. Any unusual market activity probably means that news of the matter is being disclosed and that certain persons are taking advantage of it. In such case, the Exchange should be advised immediately and a halt in trading will be imposed until the company has made disclosure on the matter.

At any time when material information is being withheld from the public, the company is under a duty to take precautions to keep such information completely confidential. Such information should not be disclosed to any officers or employees of the company, or to the company's advisors, except in the necessary course of business. The directors, officers and employees of a listed company should be reminded on a regular basis that confidential information obtained in the course of their duties must not be disclosed. It is contrary to law under the Ontario Securities Act for any person in a "special relationship" with a company to make use of undisclosed material information. This point is discussed below.

Listed companies must comply with the provisions of section 74 of the Ontario Securities Act requiring confidential disclosure to the Ontario Securities Commission of any "material change" that is not immediately being disclosed to the public.

F. Insider Trading

Law

Every listed company should have a firm rule prohibiting those who have access to confidential information from making use of such information in trading in the company's securities before it has been fully disclosed to the public and a reasonable period of time for dissemination of such information has passed.

Insider trading is strictly regulated by Part XX and sections 75 and 131 of the Ontario Securities Act, and the Regulations under the Act. The securities laws of other provinces also regulate insider trading in their respective jurisdictions. Insider trading in the securities of companies incorporated under the Canada Business Corporations Act is also regulated by Part X of that Act. The definition of an "insider" will vary from statute to statute, but in any case will include directors and senior officers of the company and large shareholders. In Ontario directors and senior officers of any company that is itself an insider of a second company are considered insiders of that second company. It is recommended that directors and officers of listed companies be fully conversant with all applicable legislation concerning insider trading.

The Ontario Securities Act requires insiders to file an initial report with the Ontario Securities Commission upon becoming insiders and to report all trades made in the securities of the company of which they are insiders within ten days of the end of each month in which any trade is made. In addition, section 75 of the Ontario Securities Act prohibits any person or company in a "special relationship" with a listed company from trading on the basis of undisclosed material information on the affairs of that company. Those considered to be in a "special relationship" with a listed company include any insiders of the company, employees of the company or employees of a second company that is an insider of the company and any person or company which has engaged in, is engaging in or proposes to engage in any business or professional activities with or on behalf of the listed company and who has acquired knowledge of material information in such capacity.

In any situation where material information is being kept confidential because disclosure would be unduly detrimental to the best interests of the company, management is under a duty to take every possible precaution to ensure that no trading whatsoever takes place by any insiders or persons in a "special relationship" with the company, such as lawyers, engineers and accountants, in which use is made of such information before it is generally disclosed to the public. Similarly, undisclosed material information cannot be passed on or "tipped" to others who may benefit by trading on the information.

In the event that the Market Surveillance Division is of the opinion that insider or improper trading may have occurred before material information has been disclosed and disseminated, the Exchange requires an immediate announcement to be made disclosing the material information being made use of.

2.17 BELL CANADA ENTERPRISES INC.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SECURITIES ACT,
R.S.O. 1980, CHAPTER 466

AND

IN THE MATTER OF BELL CANADA ENTERPRISES INC.

RULING
(Section 73)

UPON the application of Bell Canada Enterprises Inc. ("BCE") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for a ruling pursuant to section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") that an intended trade by BCE in up to 2,000,000 of its common shares is not subject to sections 24 and 52 of the Act and that the first subsequent trade in such shares shall be governed by subsection 71(5) of the Act;

AND UPON it being represented to the Commission that:

I BCE is proposing to acquire The Case-Hoyt Corporation ("C-H"), a Rochester, New York, based printing company, pursuant to a merger agreement dated April 12, 1984 entered into by BCE, C-H and a wholly owned subsidiary of BCE formed for such purpose (the "Merger Agreement"). Pursuant to the Merger Agreement, C-H and the subsidiary will merge to form a single corporation wholly owned by BCE, and BCE will issue up to 2,000,000 of its common shares to the former common shareholders of C-H in exchange for their C-H common shares;

II There are approximately 280 C-H common shareholders of record, none of whom have registered addresses outside the United States;

III After the transaction, the C-H shareholders will own, in the aggregate, less than 0.2% of BCE's issued and outstanding common shares;

IV BCE has filed a prospectus with the Securities & Exchange Commission in connection with this transaction providing the information required by U.S. securities laws, and C-H will provide such prospectus to all C-H shareholders in advance of the meeting of C-H shareholders to be held to consider and, if deemed appropriate, to approve the Merger Agreement;

V The proposed transaction in substance is equivalent to a transaction described in clause 71(1)(i) of the Act, and accordingly, it is appropriate that the initial issue of shares to C-H shareholders be exempt from the registration and prospectus requirements of the Act, and that the provisions of subsection 71(5) apply to the first trade in the BCE common shares issued pursuant to the Merger Agreement.

AND UPON being satisfied tthat to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED pursuant to section 73 of the Act that:

1. the proposed issue by BCE of up to 2,000,000 of its common shares to the shareholders of C-H pursuant to the Merger Agreement is not subject to sections 24 and 52 of the Act, provided that:

(a) such trade is made pursuant to the provisions of the Merger Agreement; and

(b) the Merger Agreement is duly approved by the shareholders of C-H; and

2. the first trade by the former C-H shareholders in the BCE common shares issued to them pursuant to the Merger Agreement shall be subject to subsection 71(5) of the Act as if the issue of such common shares had been effected pursuant to clause 71(1)(i) of the Act.

ORDER
(Section 99(e))

UPON the application of Northwestern Utilities Limited (the "Applicant") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to section 99(e) of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") for an order exempting the Applicant from certain requirements of Part XIX of the Act;

AND UPON it being represented to the Commission that:

1. The Applicant is a corporation incorporated under the laws of Canada;

2. Lloydminister Gas Company Limited ("Lloyd Gas") is a corporation continued under the Business Corporations Act of Saskatchewan;

4. Less than 5% of the shareholders of Lloyd Gas are resident in Ontario;

5. The Applicant proposes to attach to the Offer the following conditions (hereinafter referred to collectively as the "Proposed Conditions") which would give it the right not to take up and pay for Lloyd Gas Shares:

   (a) if any undisclosed action or omission prior to the date of the Offer or any action subsequent to that date by a person or company, other than the Applicant, including a governmental or regulatory authority, Lloyd Gas or its directors or senior officers, results in a material change in the affairs of Lloyd Gas;

   (b) if, at the expiry of the Offer period, the shareholders of Lloyd Gas have failed to deposit and not withdraw pursuant to the Offer at least (i) 90% of all outstanding common shares and (ii) 90% of all outstanding preference shares;

   (c) if the required approval of any governmental or regulatory authority is not obtained prior to the expiration of the Offer; or

   (d) if at the time the Applicant becomes bound to take up and pay for Lloyd Gas Shares there exists any prohibition at law against taking up and paying for the Lloyd Gas Shares deposited.

6. The Proposed Conditions are permitted under the provisions of the Securities Act, 1981, (Alberta), S.A. 1981, c. S-61 and are not prohibited under the provisions of the Securities Act (Saskatchewan), which statutes apply to the Offer;

AND UPON the Commission being of the opinion that it would not be prejudicial to the public interest to make this Order;

IT IS ORDERED pursuant to section 99(e) of the Act that the Applicant is exempted in part from the take-over and issuer bid requirements of subsection 89(1) of the Act to the extent only that those conditions forming part of the Proposed Conditions which would otherwise contravene paragraph 89(1) of the Act may be attached to the Offer by the Applicant.

NOTICES/PRESS RELEASES

1.1 REMARKS TO TORONTO SOCIETY OF FINANCIAL ANALYSTS - PETER DEY

The following is the text of Remarks of Peter J. Dey before the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts, May 17, 1984.

NOTES FOR REMARKS TO THE TORONTO SOCIETY
OF FINANCIAL ANALYSTS - MAY 17, 1984 -
PETER J. DEY, CHAIRMAN, ONTARIO SECURITIES COMMISSION

Having had the pleasure of addressing this distinguished Society last year, it is a great honour for me to be invited to address you on a second occasion. I have learned in this job that return invitations are very rare. I spoke at approximately this time of the year last year -- a tense time during my term at the OSC, as we sorted out the charter of rights implications in responding to demands by policitians and the media for the release of an investigation report, and the implications of our proceeding by way of informal investigation, rather than by formal investigation, and so on.

At that time, I wondered about the mandate of the Ontario Securities Commission, and I wondered whether I would have the opportunity to become involved in some of the more substantive policy issues underlying securities regulation. You may recall as well, at this time last year we were just into rate deregulation, we were speculating about the impact of discount brokers upon the conventional brokerage industry, and we found ourselves in the middle of a tug-of-war between the brokerage industry and the banking industry, over what some perceived to be a new service - access to discount brokerage services provided by financial institutions - symbolized by the T.D. Bank's Green Line investor service. Green Line provided the opportunity for the Ontario Securities Commission to give better definition to its mandate and to become involved in the debate over the shape of our financial system, the subject which is dominating and will continue to dominate, the thoughts of the policy makers and the regulators involved in the operation of our financial system.

You may recall that the Green Line investor service, or "GLIS", is a service offered by the T.D. Bank to customers wishing to trade securities. The Bank, in effect, provides access to execution of the trades by conventional brokers. So far, as I am aware the service is only being offered in the Province of Ontario.

When the Commission first considered the proposal, the securities community believed that allowing GLIS to proceed represented the thin edge of the wedge to a universal banking system. In other words, GLIS would lead to the eventual breakdown of our so-called segmented financial system in Canada. In fact, we accepted as public policy, when we waded into the debate, that the segmented system, as opposed to an integrated system, represents the public interest in Canada - public interest based upon concerns about concentration of power, conflicts of interest, the maintenance of a diversity of sources of capital for Canadian issuers, and so on. Our response to the tug-of-war was to define those functions of the securities industry which we thought should be protected from competition from other segments of the financial system - functions in respect of which we would be prepared to exercise our powers in order to provide protection.

You may recall that we decided that we would allow financial institutions to only go so far - they could act as conduits or gathering systems for brokerage orders - but only without providing investment advice. We made it clear that financial institutions must stay out of full service brokerage and out of the underwriting business. We concluded that underwriting of new issues of securities, which is dependent upon the underwriter/ investor relationships built up through full service brokerage, and therefore, full service brokerage as well as underwriting should be protected from competition from other financial institutions.

Our hope was that the comprehensive network of outlets of the financial institutions would serve to stimulate interest by Canadian savers in the capital markets, and that these savers would turn into investors who would eventually realize that if they really wanted to be involved in any sort of a meaningful way in the capital formation process, they would have to deal with full service brokers. Certainly the recent report of The Toronto Stock Exchange on the profile of the Canadian investing population suggests that there is tremendous potential for involving many more Canadians in the capital formation process.

The involvement of the Commission in sorting out Green Line helped the Commission to give more specific definition to its role in regulating the capital markets. There are some who say that the Commission's mandate is investor protection and that its responsibility is simply to administer the Securities Act. These same people argue that policy is the responsibility of Cabinet and of the Legislature, and that the Commission has no role in policy formulation.

I think this definition of the Commission's mandate is much too narrow. The principal concern of a securities regulator is the efficiency of the capital markets. Traditionally, efficiency was achieved through investor protection - the prospectus and registration requirements, for example. Investor protection remains the most important means of achieving market efficiency, but efficiency also turns on who participates in the market and on what terms, and resolving this aspect of market efficiency does not always depend upon protecting investors. To be sure, investor protection has to be addressed, but it may not always be an issue.

The regulator, then, may consider other criteria. For example, the promotion of capital markets. In allowing financial institutions to provide access to brokerage execution, the Commission was influenced by this potential, which I referred to, for increased competition to attract savings into the capital market. Having said that, we did recognize that our decision in the Green Line issue was loaded with policy implications for the four pillars. We also recognize that significant policy determinations should be made by the Legislature. We did, however, feel that we required a policy context within which to consider Green Line - an issue we couldn't duck.

Ultimately, the policy decisions will be made by the Legislature, and our approach to Green Line will simply be regarded as one approach to resolving the pressures for a more integrated financial system.

Another issue which we can't duck, and which we think requires a current policy context within which it is to be considered, is the proposal of Daly Gordon Securities to separate its business into two parts - one part carrying on the securities activities requiring registration, such as retail brokerage, and the other part carrying on activities exempt from registration, such as arranging private placements. This proposal was really the spark that some of us had been waiting for, the spark to ignite a study of certain aspects of the regulatory framework of the Canadian securities industry. The Daly Gordon proposal is a responsible response to the needs perceived by at least one securities firm for increased capital, and increased international connections in order to better service Canadian issuers and Canadian investors whose interests extend beyond the domestic markets.

Because our rules concerning ownership, that is to say, non-resident ownership and institutional ownership, apply only to registrants, the exempt part of the business would be free of the ownership restrictions. Daly Gordon recognized this, and proposed to set up the exempt part of its business in a separate corporation, which would have investors who wouldn't qualify as investors in the registered part of the business. As you are probably aware, the proposal was put formally before the I.D.A. and the T.S.E., and has been denied. The T.S.E. decision has been appealed to the Commission, but Daly Gordon has requested that a hearing of the appeal be deferred until after the completion by the Commission of its recently-announced study into the structure of the securities industry.

We have styled this study as a policy review to assess the competitive position of the securities industry in domestic and international financial markets. When I say that some of us were waiting for a proposal like the Daly Gordon proposal, what I mean is that in the view of many, the restrictions on non-resident ownership which were conceived in the early 70s, the apparently dormant recommendations of the Commission made in 1979 concerning suitcase brokers and the recommendations of the Commission made in late 1982 concerning institutional ownership and diversification of the securities industry, were all sitting out there waiting for a comprehensive study. The Daly Gordon proposal provides a focus for this comprehensive study of policies which have emerged over time, but which have emerged independently of one another.

Now, I should add that our policy review was conceived in co-operation with representatives of the securities industry, and we agreed that the OSC staff study would proceed in parallel with a study by the securities industry. The securities industry has constituted a Joint Industry Committee which I understand has already called its first meeting. Both the OSC staff and the Industry Committee will publish proposals in the latter part of the summer, which will provide the basis for public hearings in September. We will be looking at a number of questions in the course of our review, including the following:

- Should public policy concerning ownership of the Canadian securities industry be implemented through the registration requirements of the Securities Act, if significant parts of the business of the securities industry can be carried on without registration?

- Or, put another way, should ownership policies apply to any company carrying on a securities business in Canada, whether exempt or non-exempt from the registration requirements of the Act?

- Are existing policies concerning ownership and sources of capital for the securities industry frustrating the aspirations and potential of the industry?

The latter questions can only be answered by understanding the objectives of the industry and by considering the adequacy of the existing sources of capital to support these objectives.

- Are the objectives of the securities industry consistent with the requirements of Canadian issuers and investors?

- Is the Canadian industry failing to participate in international financial markets to its full potential and, if it is, is one of the limitations to doing so built into the regulatory framework?

It seems to me that the Commission should constantly be striving to develop policies that improve the competitive position of the Canadian securities industry.

- Would a regulatory approach which permits a minority investment by institutions in securities firms create benefits for investors, without compromising the basic principles of our financial system?

- The same questions can be asked of the 10% limitation upon non-resident ownership. Is this limitation indirectly denying Canadian dealers and investors opportunities in foreign markets and denying Canadian issuers sources of capital in foreign markets?

- Finally, the biggest question is how the Government should go about answering these policy questions.

No doubt our terms of reference will have to continue to evolve as we respond to the changes occurring in the industry. For example, we will have to assess whether the Dominion Securities-Ames Pitfield merger suggests a trend. If it does suggest a trend, and the securities industry is going through a period of consolidation, what is the impact of this process upon the efficiency of the capital markets?

At this stage, our intention is to make policy recommendations for action by the Government although, as with Green Line, we may have to make specific orders to deal with specific proposals, such as the Daly Gordon proposal. We will co-operate with the administrators from the other provinces and invite their participation in the study and they can, if they see fit, make recommendations to their own Governments.

The summer of 1984 therefore promises to be as interesting as the summer of 1983, at least from a securities regulatory policy perspective. We invite your participation in the policy review, and will be asking for comments on specific proposals in due course.

Now I would like to turn to what I consider to be about the most fascinating securities regulatory issue that we have confronted at the Commission - fascinating because it raises questions about the line between corporate law and securities law, the mandate of the OSC, and the ability of the OSC to enforce its policies. It is a policy issue which is capable of producing the strongest opinions at both ends of the spectrum. I am, of course, referring to the regulation of "restricted shares".

As your Society is well aware, the Commission published in early March an interim policy to regulate financing using restricted shares. The interim policy was, in some ways, forecast by the securities regulators back in 1981 when the original policy - which was strictly disclosure-oriented - was adopted. In 1981, the Commission indicated its intention was to monitor the use of restricted shares under the disclosure regime and in due course, to re-assess whether any further or other regulatory scheme was appropriate. We know what has happened in the intervening period with the proliferation of restricted shares and the dramatic increase in the number of issuers which have reorganized their outstanding share capital to create restricted shares. Our interim response was, in our view, very middle-of-the-road, striking a balance between those advocating an outright ban upon restricted shares, and those advocating that the securities regulators should confine themselves solely to ensuring that investors are properly informed.

We introduced three requirements on an interim basis:

First, we required take-over protection, or "coat-tails", to be included in the terms of restricted shares offered in financings after March 2. This requirement has been controversial, and I will return to the controversy.

Second, we required that any reporting issuer which convened a shareholders' meeting after March 2 to reorganize its capital to create restricted shares should obtain the approval of a majority of the public shareholders before proceeding. This requirement has also been controversial.

The third requirement has not generated much in the way of controversy, and it is simply that a bid for restricted shares must be governed by the same rules as would apply to a bid for common shares.

I would like to take a couple of minutes to identify some of the principal concerns we have encountered, and describe two of the interpretations of the interim policy which we have made. Before doing so, though, you might be interested to know that we received 40 submissions in response to the policy, for which we are very grateful, including submissions from your Society and the other Financial Analysts Societies in Canada, each of which supported the position of the Toronto Society. Of the 40, 14 came from reporting issuer with restricted shares, 2 came from reporting issuers without restricted shares, and 12 came from lawyers and law firms. Four institutional investors responded, including the United Church of Canada, and one member of the investment industry responded. In addition, the T.S.E. and the I.D.A. submitted comments.

Now, in many ways, in reviving the restricted share issue, we are engaging in a process of sensitizing investors to the attributes of restricted shares - a process which involves some skill in public relations. Unfortunately, I don't write the headlines for the R.O.B., but life would be so much easier if, instead of reading headlines such as "OSC Assailed for Non-voting Share Policy", I could read a headline such as "United Church of Canada Supports OSC Initiative".

One of the criticisms of our interim policy did not go to the substance of the policy, but to the manner of implementation. It is the Commission's general practice not to implement a new policy without affording the investment community an opportunity to comment, if the policy has the effect of making life more difficult.

I indicated as much in a speech last Fall, where I indicated that the Commission would not change its restricted share policy without providing a prior opportunity to comment, consistent with the general Commission practice. As the interim approach of the Commission to regulating restricted shares emerged, and because the policy emerged at approximately the same time as the annual meeting for a number of companies, we became very concerned that if the proposal was not implemented immediately on an interim basis, much of what we were trying to achieve with the policy would be frustrated by those issuers who were in a position to quickly create restricted shares or finance using restricted shares.

So, the Commission decided, as is its wont, upon a middle ground. We decided to implement the measures that I referred to earlier, on an interim basis, until a final policy could be settled, after interested parties had an opportunity to comment. The final policy could be very similar to the interim policy, or it could be very different. We don't know yet. However, we are, nevertheless, providing the community with an opportunity to comment upon the form of the final policy and, during the comment period, we have established the requirements I referred to earlier for reorganizations to create restricted shares and for the terms of restricted shares offered to the public. So much for the implementation of the interim policy. The final policy will not emerge until after a public meeting which we are convening on June 7 and 8. At this meeting, we will hear from those interested parties who would like to present their points of view in person. We are concerned that the policy (which has been adopted by British Columbia and Quebec, as well) could have an impact upon issuers based in other provinces and therefore we will be consulting the administrators in other provinces prior to taking final action.

Some respondents to our invitation for comments questioned the jurisdiction of the OSC to take the initiative in the interim policy. The comments on jurisdiction focussed upon the distinction between securities law and corporate law, and argued that the Commission was, in effect, amending the corporate law in two respects: one, by requiring the majority of the minority vote, and two, by requiring certain provisions to be included in the terms of restricted shares before they could be offered by way of prospectus.

On the first one, we at the Commission are quite satisfied that we have the jurisdiction to require a separate vote of the public shareholders on corporate reorganizations, failing compliance with which the Commission could exercise its discretion to deny access to the capital markets. It is clear that one of the foundations for securities regulation is that the corporate law is not as sensitive on a current basis to the needs of investors and of participants in the capital markets. Securities regulation will often prescribe standards of conduct which exceed those required at corporate law, and which the regulators believe are necessary for investor confidence in the capital markets.

Historically, we have clear examples of securities law leading corporate law reform, such as the rules concerning insider trading, proxy solicitation, continuous disclosure and take-over bids. A more recent example is the Commission's regulation of going private transactions which are also subject to the majority of the minority approval requirement. Therefore, I have no doubt that we are discharging our legislated mandate in denying access to the markets to any issuer which does not comply with our shareholder approval requirements.

Equally, the securities regulator must be concerned about the terms of securities that are offered in the public markets. Just because particular share conditions are possible at corporate law does not mean they are acceptable for the capital markets. The securities regulator must, as required by the statute, review prospectuses with a view to determining whether a particular offering is in the public interest and, in the course of his review he must consider the terms of the securities being offered. Now, as I will suggest in a minute, we are having some further thoughts about mandating coat-tail requirements, but these thoughts are not based upon concerns about jurisdiction. As for the merits of the majority of the minority requirement, again, we are satisfied that we are acting quite consistently with emerging securities law policy.

It is the general policy of the Commission that any corporate transaction requiring shareholder approval which confers an advantage upon one shareholder group which is not available to another shareholder group, may have to be approved by the group not sharing in the advantage as a separate class. This group is almost always the public shareholders. The clearest articulation of this policy requirement was in the context of going private transactions. Consistent with this policy, we believe that although controlling shareholders and public shareholders may be in the identical position immediately following a corporate reorganization to create restricted shares, the controlling shareholder nevertheless can use restricted shares thereafter to finance the corporation without diluting his control position, an advantage not available to the public shareholder.

When we announced the majority of the minority requirement, we talked about the level playing field between controlling shareholders on the one hand, and public shareholders on the other. We are hopeful that with a level playing field the destiny of restricted shares will be determined in the marketplace as a result of a fair debate between controlling shareholders and public investors.

The one provision that is giving us some concern is the requirement for coat-tail provisions in terms of restricted shares. Some issuers have said that the effect of this requirement is retroactive and that they will have to amend the terms of their outstanding restricted shares. This is not a fair criticism of the policy in that the Commission has made it clear that outstanding restricted shares are not affected by the policy. However, if an issuer wants to continue to offer the same class of restricted shares, then the terms of the restricted shares must comply with the policy. If it dosen't want to amend the terms of its restricted shares the issuer can create a new class of restricted shares complying with the policy. What is giving us concern, is designing acceptable coat-tail provisions and the practical problems issuers will face with potential appraisal rights in the event that they do create a new class of restricted shares conforming with the policy or, if they do want to amend the terms of their outstanding shares to bring the shares into conformity with the policy?

We are, therefore, giving some thought to proposing an amendment to the Securities Act which would, in effect, legislate a coat-tail requirement. The provision would simply state that any person making a take-over bid for common shares of an issuer which also has a class of restricted shares must make the same offer to holders of the restricted shares.

Now we will receive a lot of comment that restricted shares will, particularly if they have enjoyed some preference over the common shares, receive a windfall, and there will be some merit to this comment. But it is always possible that revisions to legislation can disappoint some expectations and reward others. The proposed legislation is a factor that corporate financiers will simply have to take into account in designing the preferences attached to restricted shares.

We will also suggest that the offer to the holders of the restricted shares must be the same offer to avoid the problems that we encountered in administering the follow-up obligation where the Commission constantly found itself trying to decide whether an offer was equivalent to the offer made under the private agreement. As I mentioned earlier, we are looking forward to a public debate of these issues and others in early June.

There are a couple of recent developments concerning restricted shares that merit some comment. Like you, I read with interest the newspaper report of the so-called interim ruling made in the Federal Department of Insurance that voting shares are not common shares. I simply wish to comment that whatever the Federal Department is doing in this respect is being done quite independently of initiatives we are taking concerning restricted shares. Our interest in the Department's ruling only relates to the impact of any such ruling upon the capital markets. We are liaising with the Federal Department to express our interest in this area.

The other two developments concern interpretations by the Commission of the interim policy. One situation arose when a company was making its first public offering of common shares. It also had an authorized but unissued class of shares for which the attributes could be established by the Board of Directors. There was some concern at the Commission that the purchasers of common shares on the public offering could end up holding restricted shares if eventually the directors set the attributes of the authorized class of shares to provide, for example, super voting rights.

Our policy will address this situation expressly and will require the holders of the common shares to approve the terms of the authorized class of shares if the terms of the new class will have the effect of turning the common shares into restricted shares.

The other example relates to an offering being made by Canfor of preferred shares exchangeable into restricted shares of Versatile, a subsidiary of Canfor. Our staff took the position that because the coat-tail provisions of the restricted shares underlying the preferred shares do not comply with our policy that, even though the restricted shares were outstanding at the effective date of the policy because these shares were indirectly being offered to the public for sale by way of prospectus, the public had the right to believe that the restricted shares would comply with the Commission policy. The Commission took a different view, and decided that the policy should only apply to restricted shares issued after the effective date of the policy and that, therefore, restricted shares that did not comply with the policy that were outstanding at the effective date of the policy, could be offered by way of prospectus. The policy is still very much an interim policy and the concerns I have referred to are simply concerns that will be taken into account in the formulation of the final policy.

We are very grateful to your Society for the thoughtful submission advocating the outright ban of restricted shares. Regardless of our final conclusion, the use of restricted shares raises issues for our economic system which go beyond the capital markets and our mandate. We may, as a result of our experience in this area, try to stimulate interest in these broader issues by other levels of Government. Again, I am grateful for the opportunity which this Society has presented to me today to outline some of my thoughts concerning the emerging mandate of the Commission - some of the concerns that we hope to address in our review of the structure of the securities industry, and some of our current thoughts on the regulation of restricted shares.

I would be happy to try to answer any questions you have concerning any of these subjects, or indeed, any of the activities of the Commission.

DECISIONS, ORDERS AND RULINGS

2.1 JON D. BRIDGMAN/JOSEPH M. SHAUGHNESSY/DAVID B. ROBERTSON

IN THE MATTER OF THE SECURITIES ACT,
R.S.O. 1980, CHAPTER 466

AND

IN THE MATTER OF JON DALLAS BRIDGMAN,
JOSEPH MICHAEL SHAUGNESSY
AND DAVID BRIAN ROBERTSON

CONSENT ORDER
(Section 26)

UPON the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") having heard the submissions of counsel for the securities salesmen hereinafter referred to and counsel for Commission staff on May 24, 1984 pursuant to section 26 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c.466 (the "Act") to consider whether it was in the public interest to order pursuant to section 26 of the Act that the registrations of Jon Dallas Bridgman ("Bridgman"), Joseph Michael Shaughnessy ("Shaughnessy") and David Brian Robertson ("Robertson") or any of them, as securities salesman should be suspended, cancelled, or restricted or whether terms and conditions should be imposed upon such registration or whether they should be reprimanded;

UPON the Commission having adjourned the hearing on May 24 to May 25, 1984 in order for such counsel to consider comments of the Commission concerning the form of this order;

UPON having read the consent of Timothy J. Kreutzer, counsel for Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson, to the making of this order;

AND UPON review by the Commission of the Agreed Statement of Facts (a portion of which is incorporated in the body of this order);

UPON the Commission having heard the further submissions of such counsel on May 25, 1984;

AND UPON it appearing to the Commission that:

a) At all material times, Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson were associated with Osler, Wills, Bickle Limited as securities salesman, Shaughnessy, as well, was an officer and director of Osler, Wills, Bickle Limited.

b) During or about January 1983, Bridgman, Robertson and Maureen Shaughnessy, the wife of Shaughnessy each purchased 10,000 common shares of Intercontinental Technologies Corporation ("Intercontinental") pursuant to an offering of common shares of Intercontinental purportedly made under subsection 71(1)(p) of the Act (the "Private Placement Shares"). Intercontinental is not and never has been a reporting issuer.

c) Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson received an offering memorandum with respect to the Private Placement Shares, which stated that first trades of Private Placement Shares were subject to subsection 71(4) of the Act and that such first trades would be a distribution unless, among other things, the Private Placement Shares had been held for at least 18 months ("Hold Period") from the date Intercontinental became a reporting issuer. The offering memorandum further stated that Intercontinental was not a reporting issuer.

d) Notwithstanding that Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson were provided with and understood the information with respect to the Hold Period, they each, individually, received advice from Daniel Fisher, President of Intercontinental ("Fisher"), that Intercontinental was in receipt of an opinion from its United States counsel that the Private Placement Shares could be sold in the United States, irrespective of the Hold Period, once Intercontinental was listed for quotation on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System ("NASDAQ"), and each of them relied upon the representations of Fisher and Intercontinental.

e) At no time did Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson obtain an opinion from independent counsel or from the compliance officer of Osler, Wills, Bickle Limited as to whether they were entitled to sell Private Placement Shares to Ontario residents or whether they were entitled to sell Private Placement Shares into the United States through the NASDAQ system.

f) On March 16, 1983, the common shares of Intercontinental were listed for quotation on NASDAQ.

g) During the period March 16, 1983 to April 8, 1983, Bridgman and Robertson each sold 5,000 Private Placement Shares through NASDAQ, with Intercontinental acting as agent.

h) During the period March 16, 1983 to April 8, 1983, Shaughnessy sold, through NASDAQ, approximately 10,000 Private Placement Shares on behalf of Maureen Shaughnessy and two other purchasers of Private Placement Shares.

j) On March 16, 1983, Shaughnessy, on behalf of a client of his who purchased Private Placement Shares, sold the shares to another client of his by crossing the order on the trading desk of Osler, Wills, Bickle Limited without utilizing the NASDAQ system.

k) During the period March 16, 1983 to April 8, 1983, Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson purchased common shares of Intercontinental through NASDAQ on behalf of certain of their clients.

AND UPON Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson acknowledging and understanding that the Commission is relying upon the foregoing statement of facts as the basis for the conclusions hereinafter made by the Commission and for this Order and having consented to the issuance of this Order without a hearing and having waived any appeal herefrom to establish the foregoing statement of facts.

AND UPON the Commission being of the view that the foregoing statement of facts discloses that:

The sale of the Private Placement Shares by Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson constituted an unlawful distribution and unlawful trading of securities of Intercontinental because it was contrary to subsection 71(4) in that Intercontinental was not a reporting issuer, and:

1. (i) the securities were not listed and posted for trading on a stock exchange recognized for this purpose by the Commission;

(ii) the securities had not been held at least 18 months from the date of the purported exempt trade nor had Intercontinental become a reporting issuer;

2. Bridgman, Shaughnessy and Robertson relied upon the representations of Fisher when they acquiesced in the unlawful distribution and unlawful trading of securities of Intercontinental;

AND UPON the Commission being of the opinion that the conduct of Bridgman, Shaughnessy, and Robertson described above affords reasonable grounds for the belief that it is necessary for the protection and in the interest of the public to make this order;

AND UPON the Commission taking note of the senior position of Joseph Michael Shaughnessy and the clear records of all three respondents;

The Commission hereby orders, pursuant to section 26 of the Act that:

A. Jon Dallas Bridgman is hereby reprimanded and, as a further condition of registration, shall be obligated to reattend and pass the Canadian Securities Institute's Registered Representatives Manual Course prior to December 31, 1984;

B. David Michael Robertson is hereby reprimanded and, as a further condition of registration, shall be obligated to reattend and pass the Canadian Securities Institute's Registered Representatives Manual Course prior to December 31, 1984;

C. That the Registration of Joseph Michael Shaughnessy as a salesman is hereby suspended for a period of two weeks, to commence on Tuesday, July 3, 1984 through and including Monday, July 16, 1984, and it is further ordered that Joseph Michael Shaughnessy shall be obligated to reattend and pass the Canadian Securities Institute's Partners and Directors Course prior to December 31, 1984.

A partnership (the "Carma-Tomhig Partnership"), of which the partners are CDL, Calgary Air-Rail Developments Ltd. and Tomhig Holdings Ltd., is indebted to Morguard Trust Company ("Morguard"), as trustee for six pension funds and other investors, under a mortgage on which $9,475,000 is outstanding as of March 30, 1984.

2. CDL, the Carma-Tomhig Partnership, Morguard and Carma have entered into an agreement dated December 31, 1983 (the "Morguard Agreement") which provides in effect that:

   (a) The Carma-Tomhig Partnership will transfer the property subject to the mortgage to Morguard free of encumbrances and Morguard will accept such transfer as satisfying $3,750,000 of the mortgage indebtedness;

   (b) The Carma-Tomhig Partnership will pay to Morguard the sum of $1,000,000;

   (c) The balance of indebtedness, being approximately $4,725,000, will be satisfied by the delivery of Class A Common Shares of Carma valued at $3 per share, giving rise to the issuance of approximately 1,575,000 Class A Common Shares of Carma; and

   (d) Under certain circumstances described in the Morguard Agreement, the Carma-Tomhig Partnership will have the right to acquire at $3.00 per share a portion of the Class A Common Shares of Carma issued to Morguard as aforesaid, provided that in no event shall the number of Class A Common Shares so acquired by the Carma-Tomhig Partnership exceed 2% of the then issued and outstanding Class A and Class B Common Shares of Carma.

3. The Class A Common Shares of Carma are listed on the Alberta and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

AND UPON being satisfied that to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

1. All approvals required pursuant to the by-laws and policies of The Toronto Stock Exchange have been obtained; and

2. The first trades in the Class A Common Shares received by Morguard, other than transfers of the Common Shares to the six pension plans and other investors in respect of which Morguard is the Trustee, by Morguard or by such pension plans and other investors shall be subject to subsection 71(5) of the Act and section 18a of the Regulations to the Act, as if such Class A Common Shares had been issued pursuant to one of the exemptions referred to in subsection 71(5) of the Act.

AND IT IS FURTHER RULED that CDL and the Carma-Tomhig Partnership shall be exempt from the provisions of part XIX of the Act in respect of the acquisition by the Carma-Tomhig Partnership of Class A Common Shares of Carma pursuant to the Morguard Agreement.

2.8 HOSPITAL CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Headnote

Key Words

Section 73 of the Act - Clause 71(1)(n) and subsection 71(5) of the Act - employee share purchase plans.

Text

The Applicant, incorporated under the laws of the State of Tennessee and listed on the New York Stock Exchange (the "NYSE"), proposed to issue its common shares to Ontario resident employees of a wholly-owned subsidiary incorporated under the laws of Canada in accordance with an employee share purchase plan and in reliance upon clause 71(1)(n) of the Act. The Applicant sought a ruling to exempt the resale of the common shares acquired by the said employees from the requirements of subsection 71(5) of the Act. The requested ruling was granted on the condition that, amongst other things, such resales would be executed through the facilities of the NYSE.

Staff Comment

The requested ruling was granted on the grounds that the Applicant is listed on the NYSE and the subject employees and common shares will, under no circumstances, represent more than 5% of the total number of shareholders, and issued and outstanding common shares, of the Applicant respectively.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SECURITIES ACT,
R.S.O. 1980, CHAPTER 466

AND

IN THE MATTER OF HOSPITAL CORPORATION OF AMERICA

RULING
(Section 73)

UPON the application of Hospital Corporation of America (the "Applicant"), to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for a ruling under section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act");

AND UPON it being represented to the Commission that:

1. The Applicant, a corporation incorporated under the laws of Tennessee, has adopted a stock purchase plan referred to as the 1979 Employee Stock Purchase Plan (the "Plan") for its employees, whereby such employees may purchase common shares of the Applicant at 85% of their market value as it is determined from time to time;

2. The aggregate number of common shares of the Applicant authorized to be issued under the Plan is 2,999,998, being less than 4% of the total number of issued and outstanding common shares of the Applicant and less than 1% of the authorized common shares of the Applicant;

3. The Applicant wishes to extend the Plan to the employees of Hospital Corporation of Canada Limited ("HCCL"), an affiliate of the Applicant;

4. There are at present 26 employees of HCCL resident in Ontario (the "Ontario Employees") who are eligible to participate in the Plan;

5. The aggregate number of common shares of the Applicant that may be purchased by residents of Ontario under the Plan cannot be determined;

6. The Applicant is not a reporting issuer in Ontario;

7. The common shares of the Applicant are listed on the New York Stock Exchange (the "NYSE");

8. A prospectus of the Applicant, dated March 26, 1982, (the "Prospectus"), which has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, will be sent to the Ontario Employees eligible to participate in the Plan; and

9. The Applicant will file with the Commission, and deliver to each Ontario Employee participating in the Plan, all disclosure material required to be furnished to shareholders resident in the United States of America (the "U.S.A.") in connection with the Plan;

AND UPON being satisfied that to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED that the first trades in the common shares of the Applicant acquired by the Ontario Employees under the Plan are not subject to sections 24 and 52 of the Act, on the following terms and conditions:

1. Any such first trade is effected through the facilities of the NYSE in accordance with the rules, including by-laws, regulations and policies, of the NYSE;

2. A copy of the Prospectus, together with an explanation of the resale restrictions attaching to the common shares of the Applicant pursuant to this ruling, shall be sent to each Ontario Employee eligible to participate in the Plan;

3. All disclosure material required to be furnished to shareholders resident in the U.S.A in connection with the Plan shall be filed with the Commission and delivered to each Ontario Employee participating in the Plan; and

(Section 73)

UPON the application of British Columbia Railway Company in respect of a company incorporated under the laws of British Columbia and to be named BC Rail Ltd. ("BC Rail"), to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for a ruling pursuant to section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") that the distribution and any resale of Cumulative Redeemable Retractable Series A First Preferred Shares (the "Series A Preferred Shares") of BC Rail is not subject to section 24 or section 52 of the Act;

AND UPON hearing counsel for BC Rail, for the Underwriters (as hereinafter defined), and for the Commission;

AND UPON it being represented to the Commission that:

A. British Columbia Railway Company is wholly owned by the Province of British Columbia;

B. Substantially all the assets of British Columbia Railway Company will be transferred to BC Rail;

C. BC Rail will be a company incorporated under the laws of British Columbia;

D. BC Rail proposes to issue Series A Preferred Shares and to enter into an agreement with Pemberton Houston Willoughby Incorporated, Dominion Securities Ames Limited and others (the "Underwriters") whereby the Underwriters as principals will sell the Series A Preferred Shares to the public in all provinces of Canada including Ontario, each initial purchaser of the Series A Preferred Shares from the Underwriters being hereinafter called a "Purchaser";

E. BC Rail will make application to The Toronto Stock Exchange, the Vancouver Stock Exchange and the Montreal Exchange to list the Series A Preferred Shares and upon the listing and posting for trading of such shares on The Toronto Stock Exchange, BC Rail will be a reporting issuer under the Act;

F. The Province of British Columbia (the "Province") will agree, by way of guarantee and indemnity (the "Agreement of Guarantee and Indemnity"), to advance funds to a trustee for distribution to holders of Series A Preferred Shares in the event of any failure by BC Rail to pay any amount on account of a dividend, redemption, retraction or distribution on liquidation or winding-up;

G. Pursuant to subparagraph 34(2)1(a) of the Act, registration is not required to trade in bonds, debentures or other evidences of indebtedness guaranteed by the Government of any province of Canada;

H. Pursuant to clause 72(1)(a) of the Act, sections 52 and 61 do not apply to a distribution of securities referred to in subsection 34(2) excepting paragraphs 14 and 15 thereof;

I. The rights granted to the Trustee acting on behalf of the holders of the Series A Preferred Shares to make a claim on their behalf against the Province under the Guarantee and Indemnity Agreement are substantially the same as the rights which a trustee acting on behalf of holders of debt obligations would have against the Province in respect of any guarantee by the Province of such debt obligations;

AND UPON the Commission being satisfied that to make this ruling would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED pursuant to section 73 of the Act that the distribution of the Series A Preferred Shares to the Purchasers, and any resale of such Series A Preferred Shares by the Purchasers or successive holders is not subject to section 24 or section 52 of the Act, provided that an offering circular substantially in the form of the draft offering circular filed in connection with the application for this Ruling is sent by prepaid mail or delivered to each Purchaser.

CHAPTER 1

NOTICES/PRESS RELEASES

1.1 COMMISSION PROPOSALS/SALE OF STRIP OR ZERO COUPON BONDS

Subsequent to its introduction to the Canadian market in the summer of 1982, the Commission has monitored the increasing popularity of the financial product known as the Zero Coupon or Strip Bond ("Strip Bond").

Strip Bonds arise from the physical separation of individual interest coupons from the underlying bond residue. Sales are then made separately of the individual bond residues and coupons. In each case, the instrument represents a promise to pay a fixed sum at a future date with no provision for interest. The instruments are sold at significant discounts to their face value.

Strip Bonds were originally popularized in the United States where government securities and debt instruments of senior corporate issuers have been sold. In Canada, the market has been restricted to Government of Canada and senior provincial issuers.

Sales volumes of Strip Bonds are accelerating. The Wall Street Journal recently estimated that Strip Bonds having an aggregate principal amount of $50 billion have been sold in the United States since late 1982. No estimates of aggregate sales in Canada are available; however, the Commission is advised that sales volume is considerable.

Conventional bonds are sold on a rate of return or yield basis. In fact, the quoted yield is only an estimate (based on the current rate) as the actual yield is a function of the rate of return achieved on the reinvestment of interest receipts. On long-term bonds, the actual yield will be determined as much as 75% or more by interest reinvestment and only 25% by the original purchase. The uniqueness of the Strip Bond relates to the fact that as no income is received between the date of purchase and maturity, there is no reinvestment factor. Therefore the effective yield can be definitively calculated at the time of purchase. For market participants seeking to utilize presently available funds to meet a future known liability, the Strip Bond is an apt instrument.

The Commission is advised that the majority of sales of Strip Bonds have been made to institutional investors such as pension funds, and to tax exempt and tax deferred accounts. In the case of individuals, substantial sales have been made to registered retirement savings plans.

The Commission has, however, noted efforts to market the product to individual retail investors. In certain instances, these efforts have been strongly supported by print media advertising.

Public solicitations of sales are currently made by investment dealers, offering Strip Bonds to their retail clients and also by newspaper advertisements to the general public. Solicitations have also been made and, the Commission understands, are proposed to be made, by non-registrants who purchase conventional bonds en bloc, and then offer Strip Bonds for sale through a sales agent, which in one instance is a trust company. Promotional advertising features a specific interest rate and refers to the product as "Government Guaranteed".

COMMISSION CONCERNS

The Commission is concerned that by reason of the unfamiliarity to many retail purchasers of the instrument, a significant potential exists for confusion between Strip Bonds and other financial products such as GICs, Canada Savings Bonds and Government securities in conventional form. This unfamiliarity may also result in investors not being aware of certain important attributes of the investment. These attributes include the following:

(i) the provisions of the Income Tax Act which require holders of the instrument to declare deemed interest as income;

(ii) the absence of an active secondary market;

(iii) the potential for significant changes in resale value of the instrument resulting from increases or decreases in prevailing interest rates.

The tax consequences result from recent amendments to the Income Tax Act, arising from the 1983 Federal Budget. The effect of these amendments is to designate the discount, i.e. the difference between the purchase price and the amount payable on maturity, as deemed interest, and to require the holder to report as income a portion of the deemed interest on a periodic basis.

With respect to the secondary market, for the most part purchasers propose to hold the instrument to maturity and for them resale problems are not relevant. However, purchasers may either wish or may be required by external circumstance to sell the Strip Bonds, and in such event, may find the instruments have markedly less saleability than conventional bonds, Canada Savings Bonds and even GICs.

Certainly the attribute of Strip Bonds with which investors may not be familiar and with which the Commission has the greatest concern is price volatility. As indicated above, a feature of the Strip Bond is the ability of the investor to "lock-in" a precise interest rate to maturity. This capacity results from the elimination of the reinvestment factor. Therefore changes in interest rates will affect the value of Strip Bonds to a substantially greater extent than such changes will affect the value of conventional bonds as the impact of interest rate fluctuations on the value of conventional bonds is cushioned by the opportunity to reinvest interest receipts at future interest rates. The Wall Street Journal estimates that the price of 30-year Strip Bonds fell 25% in the year ended March 31, 1984, while the price of conventional 30-year government bonds fell only 3% in the same period. A 20-year Strip Bond purchased to yield 12% would decline in value 43% in the event of an increase of prevailing interest rates of 3%. Commentators have described the purchase of Strip Bonds as "a leveraged interest rate play".

DEPOSIT RECEIPTS

A separate aspect of the sale of Strip Bonds with which the Commission is concerned relates to the fact that certain vendors deliver to purchasers a deposit receipt rather than the specific coupon or residue itself. So far as the Commission is aware, investment dealers offering Strip Bonds for sale have not followed this practice and either deliver the coupon or residue to the purchaser or, at the client's request, hold the instrument in specie for safekeeping as a segregated security. (In the United States, investment dealers have used deposit receipts, and sell Strip Bonds under trade names such as "TIGRs" and "CATS").

The advantage of deposit receipts is the elimination of the risk of loss or mutilation resulting from delivery to purchasers of individual coupons or residues. Commencing in 1983, non-registrant vendors issued deposit receipts to purchasers. The receipts were traceable to the specific coupons or residues purchased ("Alter Ego Receipts"). In February, 1984, representation was made to the Commission that the use of Alter Ego Receipts limited sales and resales as it was not possible to aggregate coupons or residues and therefore to issue receipts to even dollar amounts. In February, 1984, the Commission made a section 73 Ruling permitting, upon terms, the issue of deposit receipts by the applicant where the face amount of receipt was not traceable to specific coupons or residues ("Non-Alter Ego Receipts"). The effect of the order was to permit a depository to hold coupons or residues en bloc, and to issue Non-Alter Ego Receipts in such principal amounts as the applicant saw fit.

STATUS UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT

As indicated above, Strip Bonds have, so far, only been debt obligations of Canada or a province and as such are in the first instance exempt securities. The Commission has reached the conclusion that the use of an Ater Ego Receipt, i.e. where the receipt is traceable to a specific coupon or residue, does not alter the character of the Strip Bond as an exempt security; however, where a Non-Alter Ego Receipt is used, a Commission Ruling is required to permit the distribution of the Strip Bond.

COMMISSION PROPOSALS

Under all the circumstances, the Commission has concluded that it is important to ensure that individual investors are aware of the nature of a Strip Bond, and, as well, of the special attributes of this investment. This objective can be best accomplished by requiring delivery to a purchaser prior to the sale of a Strip Bond of a document dealing with these matters (the "Purchase Circular").

The Purchase Circular would describe the nature and characteristics of a Strip Bond, would deal with the specific concerns referred to above under the heading Commission Concerns and where a deposit receipt was furnished, would detail the functions and responsibility of the depository. Further, the Purchase Circular would describe the risks to the investor, if any, in accepting a deposit receipt rather than delivery in specie.

The Commission proposes that purchasers of Strip Bonds be given a contractual right of action in respect of any misrepresentation contained in the Purchase Circular (see section 21(1)(a) of the Regulation).

Every person (registrants and non-registrants) engaging in the business of effecting trades in Strip Bonds would be obliged to deliver the Purchase Circular. The requirement would be applicable to resales as well as the first sales made from persons who stripped the conventional bonds. The Purchase Circular would be delivered on all sales of Strip Bonds whether delivery is made in specie or using a Deposit Receipt.

The obligation to deliver a Purchase Circular would be applicable to all sales of Strip Bonds including sales to exempt purchasers and institutional purchasers.

In order to implement the policy, the Commission contemplates imposing a condition on the registration of registrants requiring delivery of the Purchase Circular.

With respect to non-registrants, the Commission comtemplates the issue of a blanket section 124 order denying the registration and prospectus exemptions otherwise available in relation to the underlying exempt security unless a Purchase Circular is furnished.

Notwithstanding the Commission's proposals requiring the delivery of a Purchase Circular on the sales of Strip Bonds as a respone to the Commission concerns identified above, the Commission questions if it is appropriate that non-registrants sell a security whose form and investment result is unfamiliar to the investing public. The registration requirements of the Act were originally imposed by the Legislature in order to ensure that securities, other than securities which were free of risk and whose attributes were simple and clear, would not be offered for sale to the public other than through persons having the professional training and expertise to assess the suitability of the trade for the prospective purchaser. Commentators have suggested that Strip Bonds as an investment share many of the attributes of interest rate futures. The latter instrument may, of course, be sold only by registrants and following the delivery of a prospectus like document.

COMMENT PERIOD

The Commission seeks the views of interested persons on the Commission concerns identified above and the proposed response to these concerns. The Commission asks that submissions be made in writing not later than Friday, July 13, 1984.

1.2 CANADA OIL AND GAS LANDS ADMINISTRATION

1. Canada Oil and Gas Lands Administration Directive

The Commission, in conjunction with the Toronto Stock Exchange ("TSE"), has recently settled with the Canadian Oil and Gas Lands Administration ("COGLA") the terms of a directive relating to disclosure of material information by operators of Canadian oil and gas lands. Reporting issuers that are operators of Canadian oil and gas lands will have received the following directive from the Administrator of COGLA:

"All Operators Canada Lands

"As you are aware, the Canada Oil and Gas Act and the Oil and Gas Production and Conservation Act and regulations thereunder include many provisions for timely reporting to COGLA of industry activities and drilling results, including significant information relevant to, and concurrent with, drilling of wells in Canada Lands. One of these requirements for advance notice of company press announcements, has been questioned recently. After counsultation with the Ontario Securities Commission and the Toronto Stock Exchange we have clarified and revised our procedures concerning this requirement.

"As the administrator of the Canada Oil and Gas Lands Administration, I am responsible on behalf of the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development and the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources for the regulation and management of Crown Lands. In order that I may brief my Ministers, who are accountable for the regulation and management of those lands to Parliament, I require, in accordance with the Canada Oil and Gas Drilling Regulations notice twenty-four hours in advance of the release of any proposed announcement and full disclosure of any text as soon as one is prepared, except in cases involving an emergency when I should be advised as soon as possible. Furthermore, where a company is acting in compliance with disclosure requirements and disclosure is being made within a shorter period, I must be apprised of the proposed announcement and receive the terms of the draft text being considered by management and partners as soon as possible and in any event prior to the release of the information. Our requirements are not intended to delay the timely release of material information to the public.

"I can assure you that distribution of such information received by me will be limited and the information will be treated confidentially subject to and in accordance with the laws applicable to such information. Accordingly, would you please send notices and the terms of the draft text of all future proposed announcements concerning oil and gas activities in the Canada Lands to me, Maurice Taschereau, Administrator, Canada Oil and Gas Lands Administration. The telex number is 053-4366.

M. E. Taschereau
Administrator"

Reporting issuers who have received this request for disclosure of information by the Administrator of COGLA should note that it does not, nor is it intended to, derogate from the timely disclosure requirements imposed on reporting issuers by the Securities Act.

2. Dissemination of Information to the Public

Previously, information received by COGLA from operators of Canada oil and gas lands was, unknown to many, available to the public on a "first come, first serve" basis with the result that such information would not necessarily be broadly disseminated to the public on a uniform timely basis. As a result of discussions among COGLA, the TSE and the Commission, a procedure has been developed whereby information received by COGLA from operators will be held in confidence until all such information received in the week is published in the weekly summary prepared by COGLA. Thereafter, all such information will be available to the public through the weekly summary or direct enquiries.

The Commission is pleased that an appropriate compromise in this area has been worked out through discussions, among COGLA, the TSE and the Commission.

1.3 ALBERT ALLISON/TREND CAPITAL SERVICES INC.

RE: ALBERT ALLISON
(Former President, Trend Capital Services Inc.)

On March 2, 1984 Albert Allison was charged with defrauding the public of $110,825.00 more or less, by manipulating the public market price of shares of Western Resources Minerals Limited. On May 28, 1984 Mr. Allison pleaded guilty to this charge and was remanded for sentence.

On June 19, 1984 Albert Allison appeared before Provincial Judge, B.M. Kelly. Judge Kelly imposed a fine of $150,000 or in lieu of payment one year imprisonment, and in addition, Albert Allison was placed on probation for six months. He was allowed one year to pay the fine.

INTRODUCTION

This Disclosure Statement sets forth general information and considerations relevant to the purchase and sale of Put and Call Options traded on an exchange and cleared through a clearing corporation. INFORMATION CONCERNING THE UNDERLYING INTERESTS ON WHICH OPTIONS ARE TRADED, THE SPECIFIC TERMS OF THESE OPTIONS, THE EXCHANGES ON WHICH THEY TRADE AND THE APPLICABLE CLEARING CORPORATIONS MAY BE OBTAINED FROM YOUR BROKER. INFORMATION ON INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND POSSIBLE USES OF OPTIONS MAY ALSO BE OBTAINED FROM YOUR BROKER.

This Disclosure Statement refers only to Options and clearing corporations which have been recognized or qualified for purposes of this Disclosure Statement by provincial securities administrators where required.

NATURE OF AN OPTION

An Option is a contract entered into on the floor of an exchange between a seller (sometimes called a "writer") and a purchaser where all the terms of the contract (sometimes called the "specifications"), other than the consideration (called the "premium") for the Option paid by the purchaser to the seller, are standardized and predetermined by the exchange. The premium is determined on an exchange's auction market on the basis of supply and demand, reflecting such factors as the duration of the Option, the difference between the exercise price of the Option and the market price of the underlying interest, the price volatility and other characteristics of the underlying interest.

There are two types of Options: Calls and Puts. An Option gives the purchaser a right to buy (in case of a Call) or sell (in case of a Put) a specific underlying interest at a stated exercise price and within a specified period of time. An Option subjects the seller to an obligation to honour the right granted to the purchaser if, as and when exercised by the purchaser. Underlying interests can be shares of a specific corporation, bonds, notes, bills, certificates of deposit, commodities, foreign currency, the cash value of an interest in a stock index or any other interest provided for in the specifications.

An Option transaction is entered into on the floor of an exchange by a purchaser and a seller represented by their respective brokers. When the transaction is concluded it is cleared by a clearing corporation affiliated with the exchange on which the Option is traded. When an Option transaction is cleared by the clearing corporation it is divided into two contracts with the clearing corporation becoming the seller to the purchaser in the transaction and the purchaser to the seller. Thus on every outstanding Option, the purchaser may exercise the Option against the clearing corporation and the seller may be called upon to perform his obligation through exercise of the Option by the clearing corporation.

There are two groups of Options: actual delivery options and cash delivery options. An actual delivery option requires the physical delivery of the underlying interest when the Option is exercised. A cash delivery option requires a cash payment of the difference between the aggregate exercise price and the value of the underlying interest when the Option is exercised.

Options are issued in series designated by an expiration month, an exercise price, an underlying interest and a unit of trading. At the time trading is introduced in Options with a new expiration month, the exchange on which the Option is traded establishes exercise prices that reflect the current spot prices of the underlying interest. Generally, three series of Options are introduced with exercise prices at, below and above the current spot price. When the spot price of the underlying interest moves, additional Options may be added with different exercise prices. Options having the same underlying interest and expiration month, but having different exercise prices, may trade at the same time.

SPECIFICATIONS OF OPTIONS

Each exchange fixes the terms and conditions of the Options which it lists. These terms may include such items as trading units, exercise prices, expiration dates, last day of trading, etc.

An Option may be bought or sold only on the trading floor of the exchange on which the Option is listed. The exchange and the clearing corporation may each impose restrictions on certain types of transactions, and under certain circumstances may modify the terms of outstanding Options. In addition, an exchange may limit the number of Options on the same side of the market which may be held by an investor (totalling long Calls and short Puts, and totalling short Calls and long Puts), and may limit the exercise of Options under prescribed circumstances.

EXERCISING OPTIONS

At any time before the expiration of an Option a purchaser may exercise the Option. To do this, the purchaser notifies the broker through whom the Option was purchased. A purchaser should ascertain in advance from his broker the latest date on which he may give such notice to his broker. Upon receiving an exercise notice from the purchaser's broker, the clearing corporation assigns it to a member which may re-assign to it a client on a random or other predetermined selection basis.

The assignment of a notice of exercise of an Option to a seller constitutes the exercise of the Option. Upon exercise, the seller must make delivery of (in the case of a Call) or take delivery of and pay for (in the case of a Put) the underlying interest. In the case of a cash delivery Option, the seller must, in lieu of delivery, pay the positive difference between the aggregate exercise price and the exercise value of the underlying interest (in the case of both a Call and a Put).

A purchaser of an Option which expires loses the premium paid for the Option and his transaction costs. The seller of an Option which expires will have as his gain the premium received for the Option less his transaction costs.

TRADING OF OPTIONS

Each exchange provides a facility for secondary market trading of its Options whereby, prior to expiration of an Option, a purchaser may close his open long position through a closing sale transaction, if available, and a seller may close his open short position through a closing purchase transaction, if available. Closing purchase and sale transactions (sometimes called "offsetting transactions") must be effected through the broker through whom the Option was initially sold or purchased.

Price movements in the underlying interest of an Option will generally be reflected to some extent in the secondary market value of the Option and the purchaser who wishes to realize a profit will have to sell or exercise his Option.

COSTS OF OPTIONS TRADING

Margin Requirements

Prior to trading Options, a seller must deposit with his broker cash or securities as collateral (called "margin") for the obligation to buy (in the case of a Put) or sell (in the case of a Call) the underlying interest if the Option should be exercised. Minimum margin rates are set by the exchange on which the Option trades. Higher rates of margin may be required by the seller's broker.

Margin requirements of various exchanges may differ. In addition, they are subject to change at any time and such changes may apply retroactively to Options positions previously established.

Commission Charges

Commissions are charged by brokers on the purchase or sale of Options as well as on the exercise of Options and the delivery of underlying interests.

RISKS IN OPTIONS TRADING

Options can be employed to serve a number of investment strategies including those concerning investments in or related to underlying interests. SOME STRATEGIES FOR BUYING AND SELLING OPTIONS INVOLVE GREATER RISK THAN OTHERS.

The following is a brief summary of some of the risks connected with trading in Options:

(i) Because an Option has a limited life, the purchaser runs the risk of losing his entire investment in a relatively short period of time. If the price of the underlying interest does not rise above (in the case of a Call) or fall below (in the case of a Put) the exercise price of the Option plus premium and commission charges during the life of the Option, the Option may be of little or no value and if allowed to expire will be worthless.

(ii) The seller of a Call who does not own the underlying interest is subject to a risk of loss should the price of the underlying interest increase. If the Call is exercised and the seller is required to purchase the underlying interest at a market price above the exercise price in order to make delivery, he may suffer a loss.

(iii) The seller of a Put who does not have a corresponding short position (that is an obligation to deliver what he does not own) in the underlying interest may suffer a loss if the price of the underlying interest decreases below the exercise price, plus commission charges minus the premium received. Under such circumstances, the seller of the Put will be required to purchase the underlying interest at a price above the market price, with the result that any immediate sale will give rise to a loss.

(iv) The seller of a Call who owns the underlying interest is subject to the full risk of his investment position should the market price of the underlying interest decline during the life of the Call, but will not share in any gain above the exercise price.

(v) The seller of a Put who has a corresponding short position in the underlying interest is subject to the full risk of his investment position should the market price of the underlying interest rise during the life of the Put, but will not share in any gain resulting from a decrease in price below the exercise price.

(vi) Transactions for certain Options may be carried out in a foreign currency. Accordingly, purchasers and sellers of these Options using Canadian dollars will be exposed to risks from fluctuations in the foreign exchange market as well as to risks in the fluctuations in the price of the underlying interest.

(vii) There can be no assurance that a liquid offset market will exist for a particular Option to permit a closing sale transaction or a closing purchase transaction. For example, there may be insufficient trading interest in the particular Option; or trading halts, suspensions or other restrictions may be imposed on the Option or the underlying interest; or some event may interrupt normal exchange operations; or an exchange could for regulatory or other reasons decide or be compelled to discontinue or restrict trading in the Option. In such circumstances the purchaser of the Option would only have the alternative of exercising his Option in order to realize any profit, and the seller would be unable to terminate his obligation until the Option expired or until he performed his obligation upon being assigned an exercise notice.

(viii) The seller of an Option has no control over when he might be assigned an exercise notice. A seller must assume that an exercise notice will be assigned to him at any time when exercise is advantageous to the purchaser and that, in such circumstances, the seller may incur a loss.

(ix) In unforeseen circumstances there may be a shortage of underlying interests available for delivery upon exercise of Options, which could increase the cost of or make impossible the acquisition of the underlying interests in the spot market and cause the clearing corporation to impose special exercise settlement procedures.

(x) In addition to the risks described above which apply generally to the buying and selling of Options, there are timing risks unique to Options that are settled by the payment of cash.

The exercise of Options settled in cash results in a cash payment from the seller to the purchaser based on the difference between the exercise price of the Option and the closing price (regardless of the actual time of exercise) of the underlying interest on the day of exercise.

The purchaser of a cash delivery Option who exercises the Option prior to the close of trading in the underlying interest will suffer from any unfavourable change in the value of the underlying interest from the time of his decision to exercise to the close of trading in the underlying interest when the exercise value is determined. With actual delivery Options, this risk can be covered by a complementary transaction in the actual market for the underlying interest.

The seller of an Option is not informed that he has been assigned an exercise notice at the earliest until the business day following exercise and the seller will suffer from any unfavourable change in the value of the underlying interest from the close of trading in the underlying interest on the day of exercise to the time he learns that he has been assigned. Unlike the seller of a physical delivery option, the seller of a cash settlement option cannot satisfy his assignment obligations by delivery of the lower valued underlying interest, but must pay cash in an amount determined by the closing price of the underlying interest on the exercise date.

The type of risk discussed above makes spread positions and certain other combined option strategies involving cash settlement options substantially more risky than similar strategies involving physical delivery options.

TAX CONSEQUENCES

The income tax consequences of trading in Options are dependant upon the nature of the business activities of the investor and the transaction in question. Investors are urged to consult their own professional advisers to determine the consequences applicable to their particular circumstances.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Before buying or selling an Option an investor should discuss with his broker:

- His investment needs and objectives
- The risks he is prepared to take
- The specifications of Options he may wish to trade
- Commission rates

- Margin requirements
- Any other matter of possible concern.

Specifications for each Option are available on request from your broker and from the exchange on which the Option is listed.

1.2 OSC/SECURITIES INDUSTRY POLICY REVIEW

1.2.1 PRELIMINARY ISSUES PAPER

ONTARIO SECURITIES COMMISSION
SECURITIES INDUSTRY POLICY REVIEW

A. BACKGROUND

By press release dated May 2, 1984 (the "Press Release"), the Commission announced its intention to undertake a policy review of the adequacy and relevance of the regulations governing the ownership and registration of securities firms. At the same time, a committee of the Canadian Stock Exchanges and the Investment Dealers Association of Canada (the "Joint Industry Committee") was constituted to conduct a similar review. The Commission wishes to encourage broad participation in the review process, both prior to and in connection with the public meeting which the Commission intends to convene in September. In order to facilitate and focus such input the Commission has prepared this preliminary issues paper, designed to give some indication of issues which are of immediate concern to the Commission. Such concerns may be modified or augmented with the benefit of submissions from interested parties.

On June 13, 1984, the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations announced the composition of the task force, to be chaired by Professor Dupre, to examine the organization and operation of financial institutions in Ontario. That task force has stated that it intends to release an interim report by the end of 1984, which will identify the general issues it intends to examine and will propose a consultative process for carrying out its investigation. The Commission's focus will be more specific than that of the task force, considering the issue of outside involvement in the securities industry from the perspective of the industry and capital market efficiency rather than from the perspective of other financial institutions. The Commission intends to publish its recommendations in later 1984 and will provide materials generated by its review to the task force.

B. INTRODUCTION

The Commission's overriding regulatory mandate is to ensure the efficiency of domestic capital markets. This is achieved through a variety of regulatory instruments, including those specifically oriented to investor protection (e.g. disclosure requirements) as well as registration and ownership requirements, whereby the Commission can effectively control the participants in domestic capital markets.

The securities industry (as part of the financial services sector) is in the midst of an era of significant change. Virtually each day announces the introduction of a new product or service; another application of telecommunications or other evolving forms of technology; or another merger, consolidation, combination or cooperative relationship of securities firms, financial intermediaries and others who have hitherto operated outside of what is generally considered to be the financial services sector. Each change triggers others, so that events of far-reaching importance to the structure and composition of the securities industry are occurring at an ever-accelerating rate.

It is essential that the Canadian securities industry be allowed and encouraged to maintain its presence among the most innovative and competitive market intermediaries in the world. For its part, the Commission must ensure that the regulatory framework it administers remains relevant to this process. Failure to do so will, in short order, lead to regulatory gaps and conflicts which could inhibit market efficiency and limit the effectiveness of the Commission.

C. THE ISSUES

In initiating this policy review, the Commission is primarily concerned with three interrelated issues:

1. the sources and quality of capital that will be available to the domestic securities industry to handle future growth, innovate and compete with other providers of financial services;

2. whether and to what extent non-resident, institutional or other non-industry participation in the domestic securities industry is necessary or desirable; and

3. to the extent outside participation is permitted, how and to what extent such activities should be regulated by the Commission.

1. Domestic Securities Industry Capital

The Commission is concerned about the domestic industry's access to capital to meet emerging market challenges, including the ability generally to:

(a) innovate and take advantage of new business opportunities;

(b) deal with turnover problems within the firm in view of limited sources of capital;

(c) ensure continued industry control in the face of a trend towards large firms without any single controlling industry shareholder; and

(d) compete with other participants in the financial services sector.

The Commission intends to consider whether and to what extent existing policies concerning ownership and sources of capital for the securities industry might be reformed to enhance the industry's ability to serve Canadian issuers and investors, both domestically and in foreign markets.

2. Desirability of Non-Industry Participation

The Commission is also interested in exploring the merits of non-industry participation in the domestic securities industry. What, if anything, can non-resident, institutional or other non-industry participants contribute to the securities industry, whether by way of capital, expertise, technology or other resoruces?

The Commission intends to consider ways in which the underwriting and full service brokerage functions of the securities industry can be reconciled with new forms of cooperative business relationships that are emerging within the financial services sector, domestically and on a global level, including:

(a) joint ventures;

(b) agency net-working;

(c) entry of non-financial institutions; and

(d) the introduction of new products which link different types of financial institutions.

The Commission remains committed to the Government's policy objective of preserving a strong domestic securities industry as a key sector of the Canadian economy. In this regard, the Commission intends to reconsider whether the existing regulations are necessary or optimal to constrain institutional dominance and undue foreign influence of the securities industry and, in turn, domestic capital markets.

The Commission is concerned about the impact of the current regulatory framework on competition within the domestic securities industry, including its impact on the trend towards industry concentration and the effect of exemptions from the registration requirements on investor protection. The Commission is also concerned with whether registrants, with their responsibilities under the Securities Act, can compete fairly with those who perform essentially the same function relying upon exemptions from registration.

Finally, the Commission is concerned about the impact of its regulatory framework on international competition, including the access of Canadian issuers and investors to global markets and advisory expertise and the ability of domestic securities industry participants to take advantage of international market opportunities.

3. Reforming the Regulatory Framework

If outside participation in the domestic securities industry is desirable, the Commission must address how and to what extent such participation should be regulated. With the advent of full price competition in April 1983, the Commission's primary instruments for regulating securities industry structure became ownership restrictions and registration requirements. To the extent that such instruments interfere with free market forces, the Commission's desire is to identify the least restrictive, while still effective, regulatory framework.

An increasing proportion of the business of the securities industry is being carried on through exemptions from the registration requirements, both for securities and market intermediaries. To the extent that securities transactions may be effected in reliance upon such registration exemptions, existing ownership restrictions are not effective. The Commission intends to re-examine the extent to which it is desirable to regulate activities, "exempt" or otherwise, that involve or affect Canadian capital markets. The Commission welcomes comment on the benefits to issuers, investors and industry participants of extending or relaxing the current registration requirements as well as the impact of any such reform on entry and ownership restrictions.

In addition, the Commission is concerned about the impact of entry and ownership restrictions on the access of industry participants and Canadian issuers to international markets and business arrangements. What rules, if any, should be applicable to the offshore activities of such Canadian issuers and industry participants? To what extent should the Commission be working towards an internationally integrated regulatory framework?

D. INVITATION TO COMMENT

2.2 COLOR YOUR WORLD, INC.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SECURITIES ACT,
R.S.O. 1980, CHAPTER 466

AND

IN THE MATTER OF COLOR YOUR WORLD, INC.

ORDER
(Section 99(e))

UPON the application of 581345 Ontario Inc. ("Ontario"), Bruce F. Strongman Holdings Limited and Bruce F. Strongman (collectively, the "Bruce Strongman Interests") and Color Tile, Inc. ("Color Tile") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for certain orders pursuant to section 99(e) of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c.466 (the "Act") exempting the applicants from certain of the requirements of Part XIX of the Act;

AND UPON the applicants representing to the Commission that:

1. Color Your World, Inc. ("CYW") is a corporation incorporated under the Business Corporations Act (Ontario) and is a reporting issuer not in default under the Act and is not in default of any requirements thereof. The common shares of CYW are listed and posted for trading on The Toronto Stock Exchange.

2. The common shares of CYW were distributed to the public by way of a prospectus filed with the Commission. The distribution took place primarily in Ontario, and most of the shareholders are residents of Ontario.

3. The business now carried on by CYW was founded by Mr. W. A. Strongman and the members of the Strongman family continued to be active in the business. Members of the Strongman family currently hold approximately 58% of the common shares of CYW, of which a total of 1,415,200 are currently issued and outstanding.

4. As of March 21, 1984 Ontario entered into an agreement (the "Kernaghan Agreement") with Mr. Edward J. Kernaghan and Kernwood Limited (collectively, "Kernaghan") pursuant to which Ontario agreed to purchase a total of 456,500 common shares of CYW (the "Kernaghan Shares") on certain terms and conditions. The most significant of the conditions precedent to the performance of the Kernaghan Agreement is that Ontario shall have accepted a binding, unconditional offer from Color Tile to purchase all of the outstanding CYW common shares held by it, including the Kernaghan Shares.

5. The base price to be paid by Ontario under the Kernaghan Agreement is $16.5088 per share, with escalations of $0.1752 per share in respect of each of the months of August, September, October and November, 1984 and January and March, 1985.

6. At the date of the Kernaghan Agreement, the average of the closing price (for those days on which CYW common shares traded) and the average of the quoted bid and ask prices (for those days on which it did not trade in the ten days preceding the date of the agreement) was $10.6375. The "market price" of the CYW common shares on the date of the Kernaghan Agreement, calculated pursuant to section 163 of the Regulations, was $12.233.

7. The Kernaghan Agreement contains an express acknowledgement that Kernaghan knew that the Bruce Strongman Interests were conducting negotiations with representatives of Color Tile for the sale to and purchase by Color Tile of all the shares of CYW owned or controlled by the Bruce Strongman Interests, including the Kernaghan Shares, at a price per share substantially greater than $16.51, and which the Bruce Strongman Interests then expected would be $26.00 per share. Kernaghan agreed to forego the amount of any price greater than $16.51, and confirmed his understanding that any follow-up offer would not be extended to him.

8. On March 28, 1984 Color Tile and the principal shareholders of CYW (including the Bruce Strongman Interests, but excluding Kernaghan) entered into an agreement in principle providing that Color Tile would make an offer to purchase all of the outstanding common shares of CYW at $25.00 per share (the "Color Tile Offer"), that the principal shareholders would enter into a share purchase agreement with Color Tile, and that they would deposit their CYW common shares including the Kernaghan Shares, on the Color Tile Offer. The Color Tile Offer is conditional upon receipt of FIRA approval, the deposit of at least 60% of the outstanding CYW common shares on the Color Tile Offer, and there being no material change in the affairs of CYW.

9. During the course of negotiations leading to the execution of the share purchase agreement, the Bruce Strongman Interests have agreed that, subject to the approval of the Commission, Ontario will sell the Kernaghan Shares purchased by Color Tile under the Color Tile Offer at the purchase price under the Kernaghan Agreement plus $150,000 for expenses, including legal expenses, incurred or to be incurred in negotiating the various agreements resulting in the acquisition by Color Tile of all the CYW common shares, including the Kernaghan Shares held by the Bruce Strongman Interests. This purchase price will be no lower than $16.84 per share, but may be increased in accordance with the Kernaghan Agreement to a maximum of $17.89. Ontario has agreed to accept this lower price in exchange for a commitment that Color Tile will make the Color Tile Offer at a price not to exceed $28.88 per CYW common share, which price would be decreased as the price of the Kernaghan Shares increased pursuant to the Kernaghan Agreement, but which price in any event would be at least $28.39.

AND UPON being of the opinion that to grant this order would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

IT IS ORDERED pursuant to section 99(e) of the Act, that each of the Bruce Strongman Interests is exempted from compliance with subsection 91(1) of the Act in connection with the purchase of the Kernaghan Shares from Kernaghan;

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, pursuant to section 99(e) of the Act, that Color Tile is exempted from the requirement in subsection 91(3) of the Act to offer the same consideration to all shareholders of CYW in that it is permitted to pay Ontario approximately $17.00 per share for the shares purchased by Ontario from Kernaghan and deposited under the bid.

AND

IN THE MATTER OF TURBO RESOURCES LIMITED, MERLAND EXPLORATIONS LIMITED AND
BANKENO MINES LIMITED

ORDER
(Section 140)

UPON the application of Turbo Resources Limited ("Turbo") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") pursuant to section 140 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c.466 (the "Act") for an order varying the ruling issued by the Commission pursuant to sections 99(e), 140 and 16(3) of the Act as of the 8th day of November, 1983 (the "Original Ruling") as varied by Orders issued by the Commission pursuant to section 140 of the Act as of the 31st day of January, 1984 (the "January Ruling"), as of the 30th day of March, 1984 (the "March Ruling") and as of the 31st day of May, 1984 (the "May Ruling") that, in part, granted Turbo an exemption from any obligation it may have to purchase any of the common shares or preferred shares of Merland Explorations Limited ("Merland") provided that the distribution of the Settlement Proceeds contemplated therein, to the Merland Minority Shareholders (as defined in the Turbo Information Memorandum dated September 14, 1983), took effect on or before June 30, 1984;

AND UPON the Commission being satisfied that to vary the Original Ruling, as amended by the January Ruling, March Ruling and May Ruling, would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED pursuant to section 140 of the Act that the May Ruling is varied by deleting the date June 30, 1984 from the last paragraph thereof and substituting therefor the date July 13, 1984.

2.4 VENTURES WEST TECHNOLOGIES INTERNATIONAL LIMITED PARTNERSHIP

Headnote

S.73 - Reorganization of capital - percentage of assets of a corporation transferred to newly formed limited partnership - distribution of units in limited partnership to shareholders of corporation on pro rata basis - resale of limited partnership units to be governed by section 71(4).

IN THE MATTER OF THE SECURITIES ACT,
R.S.O. 1980, CHAPTER 466

AND

IN THE MATTER OF VENTURES WEST TECHNOLOGIES
INTERNATIONAL LIMITED PARTNERSHIP

RULING
(Section 73)

UPON the application of Ventures West Technologies International Limited Partnership ("VWT Internatinal Partnership") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for a ruling pursuant to section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") that the intended trades in limited partnership units (the "Units") of VWT International Partnership to holders of Class A common shares (the "Class A Shares") and 25% debentures due 1992 (the "Debentures") of Ventures West Technologies Limited ("VWT Company") are not subject to section 24 or 52 of the Act;

AND UPON it being represented to the Commission that:

1. VWT Company, Ventures West Technologies Limited Partnership ("VWT Partnership") and VWT International Partnership were each incorporated or formed, as the case may be, under the laws of the Province of British Columbia, are not reporting issuers under the Act and together comprise the Ventures West Technologies group (the "VWT Fund") a venture capital fund managed by Ventures West Management Inc. which invests in new or growing small enterprises whose businesses are based on the commercial exploitation of advances in technology;

2. VWT Company and VWT Partnership were each funded in April, 1983, VWT Company by pension funds and other tax exempt institutions (the "VWT Company Investors") who subscribed for Debentures and Class A Shares at a minimum subscription (the "Minimum Subscription") of $1,000,000 principal amount of Debentures together with 4,000 Class A Shares for each VWT Company Investor unless the VWT Company Investor was one of a group of VWT Company Investors the investment portfolio of each of which was managed by a single investment counsel where the aggregate subscription by such group was at least equal to the Minimum Subscription;

3. An advance income tax ruling obtained by VWT Company from Revenue Canada, confirming that the interest payable on the Debentures is deductible by VWT Company for income tax purposes, was based on the assumption that VWT Company would not make any investments that would consist of "foreign property" as defined in the Income Tax Act of Canada;

4. VWT Fund now wishes to invest in certain U.S. venture capital opportunities which are "foreign property" and VWT International Partnership was formed as a vehicle through which the VWT Company Investors would be able to participate in such investments without jeopardizing the protection of their investment in VWT Company afforded by the advance income tax ruling;

5. VWT International Partnership proposes to issue Units to each VWT Company Investor for a subscription price equal to a maximum of 10 per cent of the principal amount of Debentures which such VWT Company Investor subscribed for and such subscription price will be paid out of interest payments made in respect of the Debentures held by such VWT Company Investors;

6. Each VWT Company Investor received an offering memorandum in April, 1983 containing prospectus-type disclosure relating to VWT Company and the types of venture capital opportunities in which the VWT Fund would invest; the VWT Company Investors are provided with periodic reports concerning the venture capital investments made by the VWT Fund and quarterly unaudited and annual audited financial statements of VWT Company and, through the board of directors of VWT Company, a majority of which directors are nominees of the VWT Company Investors and the investors in VWT Partnership , the VWT Company Investors, as a group, receive and have access to material information concerning particular venture capital opportunities; and the VWT Company Investors approved the formation of VWT International Partnership and the issuance by it of Units to the VWT Company Investors;

AND UPON reading the application, the material filed therewith and the recommendations of staff of the Commission;

AND UPON the Commission being satisfied that to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED pursuant to section 73 of the Act that the intended trades in Units of VWT International Partnership to the VWT Company Investors are not subject to section 24 or 52 of the Act provided that the first trade in any Units acquired by any VWT Company Investor pursuant to this Ruling shall be subject to subsection 71(4) of the Act as if such Units had been acquired pursuant to one of the exemptions referred to in subsection 71(4) of the Act.

UPON the application of Power Corporation of Canada ("Power Corporation") to the Ontario Securities Commission (the "Commission") for a ruling pursuant to section 73 of the Securities Act, R.S.O. 1980, c. 466 (the "Act") that certain distributions by Power Corporation of common shares held by it in Power Financial Corporation ("Power Financial") upon the exercise of warrants issued pursuant to a prospectus for which a receipt has been issued pursuant to subsection 60(1) of the Act are not subject to sections 24 and 52 of the Act;

AND UPON the Commission being advised that:

A. Power Corporation and Power Financial are corporations subject to the laws of Canada, both companies having been continued under the Canada Business Corporations Act in 1980;

B. Power Corporation and Power Financial are both reporting issuers in the Province of Ontario;

C. Power Financial has received a receipt for its preliminary prospectus dated May 18, 1984;

D. The final Power Financial prospectus (the "Prospectus") will qualify (i) a distribution by Power Financial of its common shares, (ii) a distribution by Power Corporation of common shares it holds in Power Financial, and (iii) warrants to purchase common shares of Power Financial (the "Warrants");

E. The Warrants to be issued pursuant to the Prospectus will be issued jointly by Power Financial and Power Corporation under the terms of a warrant indenture entered into by the two companies with Montreal Trust Company, as trustee. Power Financial will reserve sufficient shares for issuance to meet its obligations under the warrant indenture and Power Corporation will deposit with Montreal Trust Company in escrow sufficient common shares of Power Financial for Power Corporation to meet its obligations under the warrant indenture. The warrant indenture will provide that common shares delivered pursuant to the exercise of Warrants will be taken pro rata from the common shares reserved for issuance by Power Financial and those deposited in escrow by Power Corporation;

F. Power Corporation is the beneficial and registered holder of 32 million common shares of Power Financial which represents approximately 80 per cent of the outstanding voting securities of Power Financial; and

G. The Toronto Stock Exchange and The Montreal Exchange have conditionally approved the listing and posting for trading of the common shares and the Warrants subject to Power Financial fulfilling all of the requirements of the exchanges, including distribution of the common shares and the Warrants issued pursuant to the Prospectus to a minimum number of public shareholders.

AND UPON being satisfied that to so rule would not be prejudicial to the public interest;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS RULED pursuant to section 73 of the Act that the distribution by Power Corporation of common shares of Power Financial pursuant to the exercise of the Warrants is not subject to sections 24 and 52 of the Act provided that:

1. a receipt is issued for the Prospectus pursuant to subsection 60(1) of the Act;

2. the first trade in the common shares of Power Financial acquired pursuant to this ruling shall be a distribution unless:

   (a) The common shares of Power Financial are listed and posted for trading on The Toronto Stock Exchange;

   (b) Such first trade is not a distribution as defined in subparagraph iii of paragraph 11 of subsection 1(1) of the Act; and

   (c) No unusual effort is made to prepare the market or create a demand for the common shares and no extraordinary commission or consideration is paid in respect of such trade.

June 19, 1984.
